KASTOR DUTO CO. ENTERTAIN WITH PROGRAM OF MAGIC AND MUSIC

Interested Crowd Packs House For Season's Magician

Every year one of the greatest crowds is attracted to the Lyceum on the particular night for which the magician has been announced. This year, with the many visitors and the enthusiastic student body here, the Kastor Duo Company had a most responsive audience.

From the time he first walked on the stage and began his first series of tricks, he held the entire group completely spell-bound. He was especially witty; and this gift of cleverly expressing himself, as well as his unusual skill and dexterity in his mystifying tricks, kept every one entranced. His program was varied and new. The unexpected was always in evidence.

Mr. Kastor has made previous visits to us, here in Milledgeville, and his performances have always been interesting and entertaining. This

Alumnae Return For Thanksgiving

WEEK'S ACTIVITIES CENTER AROUND OLD GIRLS

TEAMS COMBAT IN BASKETBALL

Spirit of Former Days Revived;
Final Score 6-3 in Favor of Class of '25

Thanksgiving was a day of interest to football fans throughout the state. The Army-Navy, Tech-Auburn, Georgia-Alabama and many other such teams went forth to battle on that day. But the one nearest the heart of every old and new girl of G. S. C. W. was the annual Thanksgiving game in which the seniors of '25 met the seniors of '26 in a hard fought basket ball contest.

This occurrence is looked forward to, from year to year, by each old and new member of the college. For many games, therefore it cannot be said that any of the larger games of the holiday was attended by more loyal fans, though by larger numbers than the '25-'26 game.

This is not the first time the two teams have met. Throughout the past school year there was a spirit of friendly rivalry among the two classes, the climax coming when on field day the seniors of '25 defeated the seniors of '26.

The team of '26 was not discouraged by its former defeat, but put up a hard fight to redeem itself. Although the seniors of '25 were victorious, the score hung 6-3, the seniors of '26 played a commendable game. Praise is due both teams for the spirit in which they played.

Members of Class of '25 Talk at Chapel Telling Experiences Teachers

Thanksgiving festivities occasioned the return of many former students to G. S. C. The annual migration of alumnae is becoming an established custom, and next to Commencement is the most popular season for visitors.

A hearty welcome was signified by banners which bore "Welcome Seniors '25", in the colors of that class. These placed at the entrance of each dormitory, gave their message throughout the entire week-end.

On Thanksgiving afternoon the guests were invited to attend the G. M. C.-Mercer freshman football game. Several hundred of them attended.

Friday morning at chapel, Dr. Parks welcomed all the visitors, after which he introduced Miss Sara D. Jordan, of Stone Mountain, Ga. To the old girls, Sara needed no introduction, for as president of her class both years she was here, she was known and loved by the entire student-body. She made a short talk on the privilege of being an alumna of G. S. C. and the joy of returning.

Miss Ruth Stokes of Bunea Vista, Ga., was next introduced. She is now teaching at Ideal, Ga., and was formerly secretary of her class.

The other officers of the class of '25, were unable to attend this jubilee reunion. They are Miss Betty Zachary, of Milledgeville, now on the faculty of Rabun Gap Institute, and Miss Frances Burghard of Macon.

The members of the class of '25, including visitors and those still here as degree students, were called to

SPECIAL HOLIDAY SERVICE OBSERVED

Presented by Morning Watch
Committee; Rosabelle Burch
Gives Inspiring Talk.

The Methodist Church was made beautiful with southern smilax and yellow chrysanthemums for the early morning watch service Thanksgiving Day. Visitors, faculty members and students were cordially invited to attend.

The selections on the organ created a true spirit of worship and thanksgiving, and the overflowing silence was especially fitting for the beginning of such a day. The usual musicals gave evidence of the powerful attitude of the members of the choir. In the talk was expressed the idea that there is one Father of all nations and of all races;—a God of peace and of love. The service as a whole was one of beauty and impress. The selections were as follows:

Organ solo—Mrs. Davenport.
Violin solo—Frances O'Kelly.
Chorus—Choir.
Hymn—Congregation.
Scripture—Louise Frost.
Prayer—Miss Goodson.
Talk—Rosabel Burch.
Orgau solo—Mrs. Davenport.
Prayer—Mary Moss.

BALDWIN HOTEL SCENE OF '25 BANQUET

SARA D. JORDAN, PRESIDES

APPROXIMATE ATTENDANCE NEARS 100

Friday evening, Nov. 27th, the members of the Senior Class, 1925, held their banquet at the Baldwin Hotel. The guests went in to dinner at 8 o'clock. Sara D. Jordan was introduced by Polly Moss who requested that each person "tune in" on the banquet at Milledgeville.

Sara presided at toastmistress for the rest of the evening. She first toasted Polly Moss as President of the present Junior Class. Dr. Parks was introduced as Governor Bradford, "the one who has made our pilgrimage one of worthiness." The returning Seniors of the class of '25 were referred to as the Pilgrims, while those who are at the college as Juniors or Seniors represented the Native Indians.

The first pilgrim introduced was Ruby Dixon who honored the occasion. The chief of the Massosolt

Indian tribe, Polly Moss, toasted Gov. Bradford, Dr. Parks, after which the guests sang, "Dr. Parks We Love You."

Another Indian, Hazel Hogan, toasted the matrons.

Then a Pilgrim, Ruth Stokes, made a short talk toasting the ideals of the college. With Mary Everett Finn at the piano, the guests sang, "We're the Seniors of G. S. C."

Annie Candler then toasted the development of the college, and Lillian McMichael the class.

The Class Colors, purple and lavender, were toasted by an Indian, Lorraine Teaver. Frances Thaxton, Treasurer of the Indians, toasted the class memories.

Field Day, on which the Seniors of '25 were victorious, was remembered by a Pilgrim, Annie Lou Archer.

The officers of the Senior Class, '25, were toasted by Ruth Moran. Lucile Williams toasted the Junior Class '26 officers.

By request the song, "Senior Class You're a Wonder", was sung. Polly Moss then offered a toast to "our own Sara Jordan."

This was followed by a talk by Dr. Parks. He commended the class on their strength in knowledge and charm. He paid especial tribute to the ability of the class officers.

Coline Reed, a Pilgrim, offered a toast to the Baldwin Hotel.

A final song, "Yes, We've Had a Lovely Time" concluded the program for the most memorable evening.

PRIVILEGES GIVEN 2-YEAR NORMALS

Seniors Meet at Mansion to Assume Responsibility

"Seniors, Seniors
Yes we are the seniors."

What a familiar song circulating the campus of the Georgia State College for Women! What does it mean?

It means the seniors of the class of 1926 have been given their privileges, that they have been allowed to wear their senior sweaters with the red and black emblems and that they have been given the opportunity to don their caps and gowns and become in true sense of the word "Seniors".

On Thursday night, November 19 the dormitories began to go over to the Mansion, the home of the President of the college, Dr. M. M. Parks and sign up for their privileges. The seniors of Ennis and Parks Hall were the first to have the pleasure of being entertained so graciously. The other dormitories went in the following order: Atkinson, November 20; Mansion, November 21; Terrell B and C, November 22; and Terrell and Annex A, November 24.

On Wednesday night, November 25, all of these girls whose name was on the senior roll and honor roll, these names being checked by the class officers, dormitory officers, matrons, and Dr. Parks, put on their senior sweaters and marched through the dining room singing songs.

To these girls who received privileges was given a great responsibility. The standards of this institution were placed in their hands to be upheld. The banner of the seniors of '26 was given to them, and every girl pledged upon her honor to uphold the standards and to give all the cooperation that she could to her school.

The privileges given to the senior class of '26 are:

1. To wear the Braid and gown.
2. To wear the senior sweaters.
3. To go to town on Monday and Wednesday in groups of two's leaving a card on file with the matron.
4. To go to the country store on Saturday in groups of two's, leaving card on file.

The fact that the members of this class in the preceding year have shown such hearty cooperation, untiring efforts to uphold the college and such a marked class spirit alone ensures us that the standards will be upheld and that the banner will continue to wave on high.

MERCER RATS AND G. M. C. MEET IN GAME AT DAVENPORT FIELD

Mercer Scores 45-0; Both Teams Show Fine Spirit

Several hundred students of the Georgia State College for Women, including members of all the classes attended the foot ball game between Mercer and G. M. C. at the Georgia Military College on Thanksgiving Day, November 26, 1925.

THANKSGIVING DAY BRINGS MANY ALUMNAE

The yearly inevitable has happened! The old girls have returned to spend their Thanksgiving with their Alma Mater. They could no more resist this call than the hungry little boy can listen unmoved to the dinner bell. They were like a river after the first rains of the fall; it unerringly seeks the old bed made barren by the hot suns of summer. They were like the boy who, having gone out to seek his fortune in the world, returns to the Old Home Town to see and to be seen.

Had these girls not listened to this call, G. S. C. W. student body would have gone hungry for lack of a "feast of love, loyalty and friendship." Had some bridge of misfortune turned the current of the river, the campus would have been dry and barren. Had they not decided to return to their Alma Mater, eyes would have lost the luster and brightness which they have gained from looking at the familiar faces of returned alumnae.

May there never be a Thanksgiving without a representation of G. S. C. W. alumnae on the campus.

CONGRATULATIONS, SENIORS!

Congratulations Seniors of '25-'26. You have reached a most looked-forward-to occasion. You have put on your robes, and with them, your dignity. It is indeed a privilege to be thus distinguished from the other hundreds of girls here at G. S. C. W. We know how you have waited patiently, but eagerly for the day to come when you would don your caps and gowns and become, at last, full-fledged seniors.

Many girls look forward to the day when they too will be the dignified seniors, while others look back and experience a feeling of extreme pleasure upon remembering that day.

Again we congratulate you and wish for you every happiness and success.

LIVING

We—you and I, are forever talking about preparing to live. When asked the value of taking certain courses of study, we frequently reply, "That we may learn to live," and add, "The youth of today represent the men and women, the citizens, of tomorrow. Therefore we must prepare for that life."

All this is well enough if in spending much time in learning how to live tomorrow, we forget not the value of learning how to live today!

Indeed, do we not learn to do, by doing? Then why not apply the same principle to life. The clean and wholesome life of tomorrow depends upon the extent to which we realize the same qualities today.

If we would be happy, one, two, a dozen years from now—we must be joyous today, and tomorrow, and the next day.

The life we live now, acts as a mirror which will reflect throughout the long tomorrow, the deeds and thoughts of today.

TO KEEP IT HOLY

In His goodness, and infinite knowledge of man's needs, the Heavenly Father set aside one day in the week in which we may rest from all our work.

There is no one more aware of the coming of this day, or more grateful for its arrival, than the student.

Sunday means that we are able to put away the results of other's thinking and think only as we will. It is a day on which we may bring out all latent thoughts, that have been packed away for future meditation, and review them. It is a day in which we are at leisure to forget that there was a yesterday and that there will be a tomorrow. But in this day He gave to us we would not forget to:

"Spend the day with God,
Kneel down to Him in prayer,
Lift our hearts to His abode,
And seek His love to share."

RED AND BLACK EMBLEMS ARE DONNER BY SENIORS

"What is so rare as a day in June?" so sings the poet—and we might answer and say—a senior without a thrill on emblem day. There are days and days of thrills—the day you came back September and saw all the old girls, the day senior rings and pins came, the day the folks came to see you, the day you left for home Christmas—but of all these days there is one just a little more thrilling: It is the first day you wear the emblem and robe. It is certainly a never-to-be-forgotten day. Last Wednesday was THE day for the seniors, and indeed it was a sight for all to see the red and black emblems and the smiling faces of the senior normals. And my! what a distinctly individual feeling you have when you hear a freshman say:

"I didn't know she was a senior!"

"IMPORTANCE OF HEALTH STUDY BEING REALIZED"

Says Mrs. Wooten, Head of the Health Department

Mrs. Wooten, head of the health department of the Georgia State College for Women in an interview stated that the study of health is becoming one of the most important subjects in the school.

"Parents and students, as well as teachers are realizing more and more the importance of health courses, especially in the grades," she said, and they are realizing that it should come first in the curriculum.

Mrs. Wooten also added that the teaching of health, especially in the grades, is most interesting. There is so much material coming out every day, which adds to the interest and also to the enthusiasm of the children.

"Health courses can be correlated with most of the other subjects taught, adding more interest to both," she said.

"To me, health is the most interesting of all courses and is fast becoming among the most important," said Mrs. Wooten in closing.

AN INTERVIEW WITH DR. BEESON

One of the most pleasing personalities living in Milledgeville is Dr. J. L. Beeson, head of the chemistry department and also vice-president of G. S. C. W.

When a member of the journalism class at G. S. C. W. rang the bell at his home she was ushered into his library, a delightful room, the walls of which were lined with books. The Doctor was seated before a cozy fire while his charming little wife fitted in and out.

After the pleasantries of the day were passed I asked why he chose chemistry as his life work.

Dr. Beeson said, with his characteristic smile, "Chemistry is a fundamental science which goes to the bottom of things."

"Is it a real science?" I asked.

"Yes. It is one of the most exact of all science. It makes use of the other two sciences, physics and mathematics. It is so much of a science that chemists predicted the existence of elements before they discovered them."

Then he told of its practicability. How nearly every manufacturing plant in the U. S. employs a chemist. They analyze and study the raw material, analyze and study the properties in various manufacturing processes and then analyze the finished product. Some examples are: the manufacture of sugar and in getting iron and steel out of iron ore chemists have been able to make

THE SHOES OF A GOVERNOR'S DAUGHTER

How beaming was the countenance of one Jacques Lamont on a morning in June! How light his feet! How exultant his heart! Passers-by checked their hurried steps to cast questioning glances at this young man who, they reasoned, must either be an absolute lunatic or its equivalent, a lover. It questioned the young Apollo would probably have answered:

"Mon ami! Have I not ze cause to be so happy, yes? Have not ze noted Meister Baker give to me one parcel which I carry to hees most excellent Governor of Gee-orgia? Oh think, mon ami, how ze great governor he praise Jacques puff-so!"

To a young man of the nineteenth century it was obviously a great honor to be chosen as an "ambassador" to a governor of one of the Original Thirteen. True, had it not been for Lamont's remark in Mr. Baker's presence that he was leaving at an early date for certain southern cities, Milledgeville, Georgia, to be his final destination, the precious parcel would never have started on its adventurous journey. Mr. Baker was delighted to learn of Jacques' intended visit to the little Georgia capitol. He had endeavored for several weeks to find a person on every stage out of the city of New York whom he considered worthy of trust but had not found such a person.

Jacques Lamont's journey South was long and dusty with frequent intervals of waiting for delayed coaches. Jacques' sensitive soul reveled in the beauty of southern scenery—its mountains, the valleys the streams of pure silver! The inns, as yet were very crude but Jacques enjoyed them as a delightful necessity in his course of adventure.

At length, the last stage arrived at the little Georgia capital, Jacques eyed the homes with interest. That stately building with the doric

"Have you formed or expressed an opinion?"
"Not for five years, your honor."

SUCCESS OF ATLANTA CLUB CONTINUES

Year Book Chief Accomplishment of 1925 ALUMNAE NEWS

Of interest to students and alumnae, is the continued success of the G. S. C. W. Club of Atlanta.

This club is a member of the city, state, and national Federation of Women's Clubs. It was organized in May 1922 and one year later became federated.

The idea of the club originated in 1921, but definite steps were not realized until several months later when a number of the alumnae met together for tea. Over the tea-tables, plans were made for the club. The club has since instituted a loan fund for the purpose of aiding worthy students in attending G. S. C. W.

During the present administration, under Mrs. James H. Bowden (Marguerite Russell, '15), president, the chief accomplishment has been the year-book.

"It gives the club unity and strength of purpose, as a wheel of many strong spokes revolving around a hub. 'To keep the fires of devotion kindled at our Alma Mater, and to further the interest of the college by loyal support and keen interest,' as is set forth in our constitution. The committees are the spokes that make it possible for the wheel to be of service, and the loyal cooperation of each committee has made it possible for a great year to be planned," says Mrs. W. Frank Wells, in respect to the year book.

The year book outlines briefly, the business and social meetings scheduled for the year ending May, 1926. It includes also a history of the club, its constitutions and by-laws, and finally a list of the members and their addresses.

PRESIDENT OF STATE HOME ECONOMICS ASSOCIATION IS HONORED

The Home Economics Club entertained with a tea, Saturday evening, Nov. 23, in honor of Miss Clara Cone, President of the Georgia Home Economics Association and Supervisor of Home Economics in the Atlanta High Schools.

The guests were received in the dining room of the Household Science Department by Miss Clara Hasslock, head of the department, and the honor guest, Miss Tabb presided over the tea table. The predominant color scheme of the dining room was green and gold.

After an informal reception Miss Cone gave an interesting and inspiring talk. She told of the work being done in Atlanta and throughout the state in the field of Home Economics. She gave this boost to girls graduating from G. S. C. W., "out of twenty-seven teachers of Home Economics in Atlanta, sixteen are G. S. C. W. girls. In the campaign during Better Homes Week, the four model homes on exhibition were each under the supervision of a girl from this college."

Miss Cone is a Milledgeville girl and a graduate of G. S. C. W. She first received a two-year diploma. The next year she returned as a Junior Student Assistant. After she received her degree she remained with the department as a member of the faculty. She attended Columbia University two years. Since then she has been connected with the Atlanta Public School System. She was first head of Home Economics at Girl's High. At present she is supervisor of Home Economics in all the high schools of Atlanta.

Miss Cone urged the club to affiliate again this year with the Georgia Home Economics Association. She outlined the work of the Association. Each year the association sponsors an essay contest for high school girls of Georgia. The G. S. C. Club is honored by having as its vice-president a first-prize winner. Wynelle Ottwell received her scholarship to G. S. C. in the contest of 1924.

Among the visitors on the campus the past week-end were the following members of the 1925 Senior Normal class: Frances Burghard, Annie Lou Archer, Virginia Poy, Gwendolyn Tony, Lois Hendon, Lucille English, Catherine Hudson, Clyde McWhite, Gladys Gammage, Addie Haisfield, Lillie McDuffee, Cornelia Montgomery, Lillian McClellan, Ruth Stokes, Emma Stevens, Sara D. Jordan, Lucille Williams, Mary McLean, Colene Reed, Marguerite Miner, Rubye Dickson, Marguerite Lehman, Francis McWhorter, Mary Kate Bartley, Helen Davis, Florence Hogan, Elsie Ragland, Lola Dekle, Ruby Motton, Marian Pierce, Gertrude Burke, Bernice Vickery, Virginia Bussey, Attie Gladden.

MOORE-BELL WEDDING ON NOVEMBER 23

Monday morning, Nov. 23, just before noon, Mrs. Ophelia Moore and Mr. J. F. Bell, Sr., were married here, Rev. H. D. Warnock officiating.

Mrs. Bell has been for several years the popular dietitian at the Georgia State College for Women here, and was one of the most popular women ever connected with that institution. She came here from White Plains to take up her duties at the college, and her unusual capability and her popularity with the students rapidly gained for her a place of value on the official board of the institution. No one ever left the college since its beginning who left behind them more sincere or widespread regret at their departure.

Mr. Bell is one of Milledgeville's most popular merchants, and is well known throughout the state. He has one of the largest grocery stores here, and has been in business here for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell will reside on South Liberty street.—The Milledgeville Times.

BOOSTERS TEA

On Friday afternoon, November 20, Anna Elizabeth Branch entertained the Boosters Club at Tea from four until six o'clock.

HOME ECONOMICS SOCIAL

The members of the Home Economics Club were entertained with a delightful social on Monday evening, November 23, at seven o'clock.

The guests assembled in the Terrell Hall gymnasium where they enjoyed popular music rendered by the Jolly Strummers.

Later, refreshments were served. The Thanksgiving spirit was carried out with dainty hand painted cards placed on each plate.

BIBLE STUDY CLASS TAKES TOUR

A very unique party was given Saturday afternoon by Rosabel Burch's Bible Study Class. Members of the class received invitations reading thus:

"Willing Workers
R. R.
Train leaves 5:30
Saturday
Destination—Gym Room
Terrell C.
Baggage checked at Station
N. B. Ticket
Not redeemable, if lost."

Misses Dorothy Parham and Lucille Drew were the porters and took care of the baggage.

Money was given to all of the travelers before they started on the trip, and with this they purchased food at each stop.

Much fun and laughter was afforded by the costumes and baggages of the many travelers.

Sadie Coran gave two readings, which were enjoyed by all. After one hour of extensive travel, the travelers returned home and reported a fine trip and brought many souvenirs by which to remember the trip.

PERSONALS

Among the visitors on the campus the past week-end were the following members of the 1925 Senior Normal class: Frances Burghard, Annie Lou Archer, Virginia Poy, Gwendolyn Tony, Lois Hendon, Lucille English, Catherine Hudson, Clyde McWhite, Gladys Gammage, Addie Haisfield, Lillie McDuffee, Cornelia Montgomery, Lillian McClellan, Ruth Stokes, Emma Stevens, Sara D. Jordan, Lucille Williams, Mary McLean, Colene Reed, Marguerite Miner, Rubye Dickson, Marguerite Lehman, Francis McWhorter, Mary Kate Bartley, Helen Davis, Florence Hogan, Elsie Ragland, Lola Dekle, Ruby Motton, Marian Pierce, Gertrude Burke, Bernice Vickery, Virginia Bussey, Attie Gladden.

Mrs. G. W. Clegg and Nell Clegg of Villa Rica were the guests of Ellen Clegg last week-end.

Eunice Phillips had as her guest for the past week Miss Annie Burgess of Decatur, Ga.

Miss Harriet Faust of Covington was the guest of Sara Faust.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kitchens visited Sara Kitchens Thanksgiving day.

Miss Elizabeth Tarbet, of Greensboro, visited Leila Boswell the past week-end.

They gathered in the Colonnade office to discuss over their tea cups the interest and enthusiasm a Booster's work contains.

EDUCATION WEEK OBSERVED HERE

National Education Week was observed by the college last week, Nov. 16 to Nov. 21.

The spirit and purpose of this week was exemplified in the talks made by the professors of the various departments.

Monday morning in the Freshman chapel, Dr. Parks explained the purpose of the educational program planned for this week. In addition to this, he gave a short talk on Education.

Dr. Webber presented the Constitution of the United States Tuesday morning, and explained briefly the vital points.

On Wednesday mornings in the absence of Dr. Parks, Dean Beeson led the chapel exercises. After an impromptu talk on Education week, Dr. Beeson introduced Mr. Wynn, as the speaker for the morning. Mr. Wynn discussed The Teacher and the Importance of the Profession.

Mr. Scott gave a delightful talk on Thrift at the chapel hour Thursday morning. Mr. Scott emphasized the fact that thrift should be observed in the spending of our resources as well as in the saving of money, time, or labor.

Dr. Parks closed the series of Education talks with an interesting lecture on general educational lines, Friday morning.

SHAKESPEARE'S REPUTATION SAVED BY TRIAL

Friday afternoon, Nov. 27, the English Senior Club held its bi-monthly meeting. This week the programme was "The Trial of Shakespeare". The judge Marjorie Denmark, called the court to order. The prisoner, Caroline Walsh, as Shakespeare, was summoned by the bailiff, Evelyn Owens, and accused of living on a past reputation which no longer deserved. The trial then proceeded in regular order.

The witnesses for defence were Julia Marlowe, Lorene Brown, David Belasco, Katherine Stovall, Jacque, Christine Montgomery.

The witnesses for prosecution were Hamlet, Ruth Harris; Cecil B. DeMille, Grace Taylor; Douglas Fairbanks, Virginia Ware.

The prosecuting attorney was Margaret Hightower, while the attorney for the defence was Cliff Taylor.

The verdict was rendered in favor of Shakespeare who was honorably dismissed. Court was adjourned.

MISS SCANDRETT BRINGS INFORMATION

Vesper services on Friday evening, Nov. 20, were led by Miss Ruth Scandrett, Y. W. C. A. General-secretary at the Florida State Woman's College.

Miss Scandrett has recently returned from a student pilgrimage abroad. With twenty-two others she toured Europe investigating foreign student activities.

The observations made on this trip enabled her to give much valuable information concerning the Student Friendship Fund, and the work being done by the Student Relief.

During her visit to the campus Miss Scandrett talked to a number of different groups including, the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, the Sophomore Commission, and those girls who are interested in industrial work, besides having conferences with individual students.

PROF. WYNN ADDRESSES THE LITERARY GUILD

"The Early Child of the United States"—sounds interesting. Thus thought the members of the Guild on their way to enjoy the most unusual program presented so far.

Mr. Wynn talked on the child life of early America. Glimpses of its cares and joys, homes, schools, and churches proved the children to be very like those of today, and yet very, very different.

The schools, the various laws, the medical treatment, the customs in the homelife of those far away days are rather strange and somewhat ridiculous in the eyes of modern life. The courting stick through which the young people, when the family was present, whispered their love; the five hour sermons; the queer wedding customs; and the unusual names of children, such as—"Tremble", "Experience", "Believe", (Continued on page 4) columns—it must be—ah yes, it was! So there is was that His Excellence resided!

Jacques alighted before the inn, paid the stage driver, lifted his luggage and stepped gingerly within. After being shown his room by the aged inn-keeper he bathed and dressed with meticulous care and descended to the bar to enquire in rapid syllables where he might see "Hees Excellence, ze Gouvernaire."

"Wal, he's most always 'home on Tuesdays, sub."

Jacques set off. As he neared the mansion his heart quailed. Bravely he tapped the brass knocker. The huge door was swung open by such a vision of loveliness as he had never seen before. How dainty she was! How exquisitely turned were here delicate features!

"I desire for to see Hees Excellence, mademoiselle, on a matter of ver' great importance. Perhaps—?"

The girl smiled and led him through spacious rooms. As he followed, Jacques uttered involuntary exclamations of pleasure over the lovely paintings the rotunds, the tracery, and the girl herself. In an incredibly short time he found himself facing a distinguished, dignified old man of genial mien who rose and courteously awaited his daughter's words. (She presented Jacques as a person on a mission of great importance. The governor smiled graciously and extended his hand to Jacques, begging him to be seated and state his mission.

"Your Excellence" Jacques began, still standing, "Monsieur Baker, once a citizen of your city, learned zat I contemplate ze visit to Milledgeville and he entrust to me ze precious parcel which he say eez ver- important. I am delight with ze honor and have journey these many miles guarding ze packet with ze life, so!"

Jacques produced the parcel and stood waiting proudly as the governor thanked him, snapped the bindings, removed the wrappings, revealing an oblong box labeled: M. Cort'e, Rue Vignon, Paris, France. Jacques jaw fell. His eyes stared wide. A shoe box! But why! The governor lifted the lid. There reposed two tiny, creations of pale blue satin, too tiny for mortal foot surely! The governor's daughter cried with delight. Jacques gazed, gasped and swallowed hard. Was it for this, then, that he had made that hazardous journey from New York to Georgia? Could it be? Fury seized the soul of Jacques Lamont. With an icy though courteous bow to the girl and an acknowledgement to the governor he wheeled and started from the room.

"Bah! These Americans! No sense of justeez! They theenk only of ze joke! Bah! And again I say, bah!"

"Wasn't he furious, father, to learn his great 'meeson' was only a pair of adorable slippers! Aren't they beautiful? Just match my evening gown!"

"Bah!" said the governor.

"Return"; all these things kept each one wondering what was coming next.

The talk was thoroughly interesting and amusing. The Guild members have come to the conclusion that their early American ancestors could not frown any deeper over the manner of today than up-to-date young people laugh over the queer customs of the past.

man football team took the strong G. M. C. team in tow by a score of 45 to 0. Both teams put up unusually good fights and the players should be commended for their remarkable strength.

The Mercer "rats" displayed their strength at the beginning of the game and this continued throughout the entire game.

Although G. M. C. was defeated badly they showed the spirit of good losers, and the Mercer team also seemed to show the best spirit of victors.

The game was very interesting for football fans and quite an enthusiastic crowd attended the game.

KASTOR DUO CO. ENTERTAIN WITH PROGRAM OF MAGIC AND MIRTH

time, however, there was an extra attraction which added much to the enjoyment of the group. Mrs. Kastor took part on the program giving several groups of selections on the Piano-Accordion. She is an accomplished artist, and played both popular and classical numbers. Her attractiveness and charm were supplements to her ability as a magician. Her part in entertaining was greatly enjoyed.

All in all, it was a pleasant evening, and the girls who went, into the enjoyment of the entertainment do not regret having done so. We are glad that Mr. and Mrs. Kastor came, and hope that they will come again.

On Friday night the class banquet was given at the Baldwin Hotel. As a get-together, the evening was greatly enjoyed.

Prior to the departure of the guests, a basketball game was staged between the classes of '25 and '26. These teams met in combat at the last Field Day. Although the '25's have been out of school for the past few months, they are still keeping their title clear. The final score was 6-3, with the '25 team victorious.
